Bank Sarasin to open a new subsidiary in Bahrain

20-12-2007 | Other news

Bank Sarasin plans to set up a new subsidiary in Bahrain following an agreement it has signed with joint venture partner Sheikh Mohammed Youssef El-Khereiji. The new subsidiary is due to open for business in 2008 under the name Bank Sarasin (Bahrain) B.S.C (c), subject to the relevant regulatory approvals being obtained. This latest move clearly demonstrates Bank Sarasin's commitment to the Middle East, where it has already had a presence in Dubai since 2005.

Strong regional partner

Bank Sarasin (Bahrain) offers clients a range of tailor-made and innovative solutions in all aspects of private banking. The new subsidiary will cater especially for family offices, entrepreneurs and institutional clients.

The joint venture will draw on the combination of Bank Sarasin's premium products and investment solutions with its partner's strong network of local contacts. The El-Khereiji Group is a highly respected multinational conglomerate with origins in the Middle East and expansion worldwide with interests in the financial, retail, manufacturing, hotel, leisure, and service sectors.

El Khereiji is present in Europe with a financial service Group based in Geneva, GIM SA, as well as significant hotel interests, including a Joint Venture interest with Marriott International, and through Sage Capital Management Group in Bahrain has raised significant funds for infrastructure development in all regions of the Middle East.

This unique partnership will provide Bank Sarasin with a strong positioning and an attractive offering in the local market. Eric G. Sarasin will be Chairman of Bank Sarasin (Bahrain).

Christian Maurer, who knows both the country and the Arab region extremely well, will be CEO of the new subsidiary in Bahrain.

Consistent growth strategy

During the first half of 2007 Bank Sarasin has implemented various growth initiatives in its different target markets and has further increased the focus on its core expertise as a private bank. This latest step is therefore a logical and sound extension of the bank's ongoing growth strategy. The new market presence in Bahrain enables Bank Sarasin to expand and further strengthen its position in the Middle East.

The Kingdom of Bahrain has one of the fastest growing economies in the Arab world and offers enormous growth potential.

Bahrain: Exploiting competitive advantages

"The Bahrain joint venture with Sheikh Mohammed Youssef El-Khereiji is an excellent platform for the Sarasin Group to establish a foothold in the attractive growth region of Bahrain and to achieve our ambitious growth targets", comments Joachim H. Straehle, CEO of Bank Sarasin & Co. Ltd.

"We are very excited about this joint venture and are confident that the coming together of the Sarasin Group and the El-Khereiji Group will further contribute to our successful development in the Middle East".

Rabobank becomes main sponsor of Floriade 2012

7-12-2007 | Other news

Rabobank is to sign a € 6 million contract to become founder (main sponsor) of Floriade World Horticulture Fair 2012. Today Rabobank Director Rob ten Heggeler, Paul Beck and Bert Slek, on behalf of Venlo Region Floriade 2012, signed a letter of intent on the close collaboration between the two parties starting from 1 January 2008.

"One could say that it's self-evident for us to be involved as founder in Floriade," Rob ten Heggeler said in Venlo. "But this time around it is much more than that. First and foremost, our business expectations are very high. And there is the added incentive of the plan to give Floriade 2012 an extensive sustainable character."

Ten Heggeler: "The plan of the Floriade organisation to realise the project with an express focus on sustainability was an added incentive for us to be founder. This also generates support for the mutual intentions of both of us in this area."

Venlo Region Floriade 2012 Director Paul Beck is especially delighted with Rabobank as the first founder of Floriade 2012.

"With it, a tradition is maintained in the sustainable relationship between Floriade and Rabobank. The key international role played by Rabobank in the agricultural and food field is a perfect match with the objective of Floriade 2012 to put horticulture on the international map." Mr. Beck looks forward with confidence to the close collaboration in the future.

Floriade 2012 will take place in Venlo in the Netherlands and carries "Living Nature" as a central theme. Starting from the notion that horticulture is a defining factor for the quality of life, the Floriade park will contain 5 thematic 'fields':

Relax & Heal – The importance of horticulture for a healthy life.

Green Engine – Horticulture as an economic engine and supplier of green energy.

Education & Innovation – The interplay between horticulture on the one hand, and education and innovation on the other.

Environment – The importance of a sustainable society and of a green (working) environment and gardens for our wellbeing.

World Show Stage – Horticulture as a source of inspiration for art, culture and entertainment.

Floriade 2012 will take place on the site of the future GreenPark Venlo. GreenPark Venlo will be an innovative and distinctive greenfield business park.

Sustainable development is the key challenge facing Europe

6-12-2007 | Press Release

European issues demand European solutions. The ageing population, the lack of innovation and sustainable development and the increasingly greater dependence on foreign energy are challenges that transcend individual European countries. This consequently demands a European approach and makes further integration of the EU unavoidable in order to find sustainable solutions for these European issues. This statement was made today by Bert Heemskerk, Chairman of the Executive Board of Rabobank, at the presentation of Outlook 2008, the annual publication of the bank's economic research department. In the related theme edition Europe – On the road to ever closer union, Rabobank reveals that European integration has not yet reached its limits.

'Making the transition to the sustainable development of resources such as energy is one of the major European challenges of our day. It is a development that presents huge opportunities for the Netherlands. We have the chance to take the lead in developing a wide range of initiatives that are leading for Europe. Rabobank also does its part to contribute to this process. For example, we have already developed unique financing constructions for wind farms in the Netherlands and Spain. Plus we have developed a credit card with a climate function and a climate mortgage. We have also joined forces with Robeco and SAM to introduce clean tech funds to the market. And we have carried out all these activities of our own volition.

It is a shame that the Dutch Government, which always has so much to say about Europe, provides the business community with such limited support. This is all the more striking when one considers that it is precisely the Dutch small- and medium-sized enterprise sector that has the potential to play an innovative role in this process. And universities and colleges can likewise play a vital role, providing that the government provides these institutions with generous support and does not keep turning off the money faucet at will. This is penny wise, but pound foolish. The current approach repeatedly thwarts beneficial developments and sustainable investments that could both help Europe move forward and be good for the Dutch economy,' says Heemskerk.

European issues ...

Despite everything that Europe has achieved in the past fifty years, there are still lingering doubts concerning the future of the EU. This uncertainty reached a low point in 2005 when Dutch and French citizens voted 'no' to the European constitution. Regardless of the current sentiment regarding the EU, the process of European integration will continue unabated. This is because European countries share three common issues that demand collective solutions.

1. Ageing population: This is an issue that affects all European countries. The exodus of retirees from the workforce will create a shortage of more than 50 million workers in 2050.
2. Knowledge economy: Europe is lagging far behind the U.S. in this area. The U.S. economy has faster technological development, dominates the league table of top universities and has a more highly educated population. This is due in part to the fact that the U.S. spends 1.5 times as much on Research and Development and invests twice as much in universities when measured as a percentage of GDP. What's more, well-educated foreigners would rather move to the U.S. than to Europe.

Economic growth will level off somewhat in 2008, but will remain high

6-12-2007 | Press Release

While economic growth will be slightly lower in 2008, the economic outlook for the Netherlands remains favourable for the year ahead. This statement was made today by Bert Heemskerk, Chairman of the Executive Board of Rabobank, at the presentation of Outlook 2008. There are, however, a few points of attention. The financial crisis is not over yet. The U.S. will, in particular, have to bite the bullet. The lower growth rate in the U.S. that will ensue in part from this crisis and the high euro combined with tighter bank lending will all contribute to a slight decrease in economic growth in the Netherlands as well in 2008, says the Chairman of the Executive Board. But the Netherlands will still continue to achieve strong growth, with our economists estimating that the Dutch economy will grow by 2.2% in the year ahead. This is considerably greater than the forecasted growth for the rest of Europe.

The year ahead will not bring a sharp fall in economic growth in the Netherlands. This is because economic growth is broadly supported in the Netherlands. Exports, business, investments and consumer spending will all contribute to growth. Heemskerk does, however, believe that the Netherlands will be faced with a number of budgetary risks. For example, spending on healthcare rose dramatically in the third quarter of 2007. And while this sharp increase was compensated by unexpectedly high returns on natural gas due to the surging oil price, there are no guarantees that natural gas revenues will continue to provide a counterbalance in the future. After all, the Netherlands' natural gas reserves are finite.

International

The financial markets have undergone a turbulent period in recent months as the crisis in the U.S. sub-prime mortgage market has blown over to other markets. The U.S. economy will certainly feel the effects of this crisis with growth in the U.S. falling below trend at 2.0%. Many U.S. households are encountering payment problems and this is placing consumer spending under pressure. This could in turn lead to a decrease in investment incentives within the business community. In the view of the Fed's attitude and the recent interest rate decreases, it seems feasible that the U.S. economy will be able to make a soft landing and avoid a real recession.

Heemskerk believes that the outlook is somewhat better for the Eurozone. The German VAT hike has now been processed by the market, the labour market is in good condition and wages are expected to rise more sharply in the year ahead. Economic growth at 2.0% will nonetheless be somewhat lower in 2008 than in 2007 (2.6%) and will also be below the long-term average (2.25%). This is because recent market turbulence, the banks' more cautious approach to lending and the high euro will have an effect on the growth in investments and exports in Europe. Higher raw material prices will also place company profits under pressure. The fact that the global economy still continues to grow at a rapid pace (4.5% in 2008) due to the increasing integration of emerging markets in general and China in particular provides some compensation for disappointing developments in the U.S. and the European continent.

Focus on labour

Rabobank has devoted special attention to the labour market in Outlook 2008. Tensions in the labour market are anticipated to increase further next year. Unemployment continues to fall and it appears that it may even reach its lowest point in 25 years within the foreseeable future. And the highest level of the previous economic cycle has already been surpassed with a current total of 236,000 open vacancies. The ageing population will also lead to increased tension in the labour market, particularly among the highly educated segment of the workforce. The shortage of trained labour is a multifaceted phenomenon that must consequently be tackled from a number of fronts. For example, labour migration will be necessary in view of the fact that it will be difficult to attract more Dutch citizens to the labour market due to the already high labour participation rate.

It is also crucial that the quality of the labour supply be improved. This process must begin with improving the quality of education in general and the quality of educators in particular. This is critical because the development of the education level of the Dutch population lags seriously behind the rest of Europe. In addition, far too many labour market entrants still do not have the required starting qualification. The prospects for these young people are not good because they are not particularly attractive to employers. It is furthermore crucially important to make labour flexible: flexible working hours (telework), more temporary and flexible wages (more performance-based) and ongoing investment in knowledge and skills throughout employees' careers. The Chairman of the Executive Board says that the realisation of this flexibility would largely eliminate the need for a further debate regarding relaxing the right of dismissal.

Rabobank announces that it has agreed a plan to take assets of Structured Investment Vehicle Tango Finance onto its balance sheet

6-12-2007 | Press Release

Rabobank has today announced that it has agreed a plan which, on full implementation, would result in the Dutch bank taking the remaining assets of Tango Finance Limited (Tango), a Structured Investment Vehicle (SIV) that it sponsors, onto its balance sheet. The assets of Tango Finance Limited are high quality US sub-prime mortgages, which are currently held by the SIV. The SIV is a vehicle set up to hold and manage a portfolio of assets, which are then sold to investors. The SIV is a vehicle set up to hold and manage a portfolio of assets, which are then sold to investors. The SIV is a vehicle set up to hold and manage a portfolio of assets, which are then sold to investors.

Tango, in common with all SIVs, has faced funding challenges in recent months. Despite market conditions, it has funded itself successfully until late January 2008 through a combination of asset sales, repo transactions and allowing income from its note investors to redeem income notes in exchange for buying portfolios of assets. As a result, Tango now has €5.2 billion in cash assets, down from €9.7 billion in July. The Tango portfolio is high quality with only minimal exposure to Collateralised Debt Obligations of Asset Backed Securities (CDOs of ABS) and US sub-prime mortgages.

Rabobank believes there is no immediate prospect of the funding situation for SIVs improving in 2008. To prevent a potential fire sale of high quality assets, the bank has announced that it is prepared to take the remaining assets of Tango onto its balance sheet in early 2008.

Sipko Schat, a member of the Executive Board of Rabobank, said: "Rabobank plans to take the assets of Tango onto its balance sheet. This will have no material effect on our strong solvency position given the size of the portfolio and the high quality of the assets."

Rabobank has already had initial discussions with income note investors and intends to conduct meetings with all income note investors over the coming weeks, with a view to executing the plan early in 2008.
